Bow: The front of the ship.

Stern or Aft: The rear of the ship.

Port: The left side of the ship when facing the bow

Starboard: The right side of the ship when toward the bow

Bridge: The control centre of the ship,
typically in the bow

Decks: Floors of the ship

Galley: Where food is prepared; the ship's kitchen

Muster Station: The designated meeting spot for passengers during emergencies or evacuations

Cabin or Stateroom:
Your room or sleeping quarters on board

Lido: A term meaning resort often used to describe a particular deck, usually where pools are located

Captain

The Captain is essentially the king or queen of a floating palace

Mate

A first mate (or first officer) is second in charge to the captain

Engineer

The person who upkeeps and repairs every electrical and mechanical device onboard.

Chef

A chef on board has to cook for the same people every day.

Steward/Stewardess

A steward or stewardess is responsible for looking after the owners, the guest and the interior of the ship.

EXERCISES

1. You embark or disembark a ship by the _____.
2. The _____ is for letting the smoke out of the engines.
3. The opposite end of the boat from the stern is the _____.
4. You can see the sea through the _____.
5. I crossed the Channel on the _____.

EXERCISES

6. The boat that is used for trawling is called a _____.

7. The 'Charles de Gaulle' is a _____.

8. The _____ provides electricity on the ship.

9. A _____ is the watertight body of a ship or boat.

10. A _____ is a boat designed for sea rescue.

- You are on a ship. A fire on board has destroyed the radio. From the rate the water is rising inside the ship you estimate that it will sink within two hours. You did not tell the authorities of your destination.
- It will take about 45 minutes to launch the only lifeboat which can only take 5 people. You can't jump as the water is shark infested. The nearest land is an uninhabited tropical island 30 km away.
- Your task is to decide which people will enter the boat. Everyone has agreed to abide by your decision. Items held by individuals must stay with the owner; they cannot be transferred to other people.

PROJECT WORK

Imagine you are a reporter and you want to interview the survivors from the disaster. Think of and write 5 questions to ask the survivors.
